Bay-Waveland schools expecting second year without budget shortfall

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District, barring any unforeseen events, is expecting its second consecutive year without a budget shortfall.

Garland Cuevas, the district's business manager, told the board Monday night that the district is "right on track" as far as incoming tax revenue and expenditures are concerned.

"At this time, all our expenditures are within budgeted figures," Cuevas told the board. He said all four schools, Bay Senior High School, Bay Junior High, North Bay Elementary and Waveland Elementary, are currently within budget.

Board President Betty Diboll stressed the importance of knowing how the district stands financially and called it "a credit to all involved" that the district, which has experienced shortfalls in past years, is within its budget.

Cuevas explained that his report does not include salaries at this point, most of which are paid through state funds.

With three quarters of fiscal year 1988-89 completed and its end approaching on June 30, tax revenues collected so far total about $1,102,686, with another $515,120 expected to be collected, the business manager stated later.

About 68 percent of the $1,617,806 has already been spent.

Cuevas said the taxes are collected through Bay St. Louis

City Clerk Edward Favre's office and that collections have gone well so far.

"We're about in the middle of tax collecting season right now," the business manager said, pointing out that $270,000 was collected in January and about $525,000 in February.

"We're not in trouble like some other Coast school districts," he added, referring to reports about release of teachers due to lack of funds. He said from a financial standpoint, he does not expect any reduction of personnel in the Bay-Waveland schools.

Cuevas said he does not know the reason, but theorizes that some districts may be budgeting too much out of federal funds they do not always receive.

Federal impact funds, for example, are given to school districts for each student who has one or both parents or guardians employed by federal agencies. For example, Bay-Waveland schools receive some of these because they have students connected with John C. Stennis Space Center.

Cuevas does not budget those, which can be erratic in amount for various reasons. When they are received, they can then be used where most needed within the correct funding guidelines.

The information on funding for the salaries, Cuevas said, should arrive in four to six weeks. He said he expects about 72 teacher units to be funded by a state minimum program allotment with the amount of money to be determined on the basis of average daily attendance reports.

A teacher unit is roughly what it costs to employ one teacher to teach one subject. The local district has to pick up the cost of teacher units not funded through the state or a special program such as Chapter I.

Cuevas said the new information will translate that number of teacher units into a dollar amount.

He said he believes the salaries included in the current budget are fairly accurate because they were amended in October and November.

After the new salary information is received from the state, one more budget amendment will be necessary, Cuevas added.

The board's next regular meeting will be 7 p.m. March 13 in the superintendent's boardroom at Bay Senior High.

PIER REPAIR—Members of a Fred Davis Construction crew work in the water to change pilings for the Dunbar Avenue Pier as Hancock County Beat Three Supervisor Lisa Coward, right, watches from a section of pier that has already been completed. The supervisor said the crew is replacing 24 pilings and adding a 30-foot extension to facilitate use of cast nets. The pier is closed while the work continues. The project is expected to take about two weeks if not interrupted by bad weather. (Echo staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Drill finds Hancock County ready for tornado threats

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County's participation in a statewide tornado drill Wednesday morning has shown that there are no major problems regarding tornado preparedness among the agencies with monitors in Hancock County.

Civil Defense Director Robert Boudin said those agencies include schools, Hancock Medical Center and others.

The only difficulty found during the drill Wednesday was a communications problem with a local radio station, which Boudin said could be easily corrected because all it involved was lack of a communications device in the broadcast booth itself.

"Everything else went fine," he said.

The drill consisted of a called "watch" from 9:05 a.m. until 11 a.m. and a "warning" from 9:55 until 10 a.m. A watch is issued when weather conditions become suitable for formation of tornadoes and a warning is issued if a tornado is actually sighted.

Boudin said tornado season peaks in Spring but tornadoes are possible all year on the Gulf Coast. Thunderstorms such as those which hit the area recently are particularly conducive to formation of tornadoes, he said.

His major concern, however, was how many people voluntarily participated in the drill other than those organized through schools, the hospital and other service agencies.

"Each individual needs to listen to his radio or keep track of it on his TV. We know we can reach the ones with monitors, but we have to depend on the media to reach the rest," the director said.

He said the most important thing to know about tornadoes is what to do if one comes.

He advises people who live in mobile homes to leave during tornado watches.

"Go visit a friend who has a nice brick home. You should leave when the watch is started, but if you don't have time, get as low as you can. It's better to be lying on the ground instead of standing because there is less risk of being hit with flying debris," Boudin stated. People who are in buildings should keep away from windows. The best thing to do is to get low in a central hallway of the home.

People who want to prepare for tornadoes may visit his office in the old county jail building off Court Street or call him at 467-9226. Civil Defense has a variety of printed information available on tornadoes and other emergencies ranging from natural disasters to radioactive fall-out.

Hancock Grand Jury reconvened this week

BY DENA BISNETTE

Despite the conviction of District Attorney Glen Cannon on bankruptcy fraud last week, the Hancock County Grand Jury reconvened as scheduled on Wednesday.

Circuit Clerk Pam Metzler stated earlier this week that if all goes as expected, the Grand Jury will meet only "a couple of days" and a report should be submitted on Friday.

She said that court business will proceed as planned until she is notified to do otherwise.

Meanwhile, Cannon is expected to remain in office until March 3.

As part of a plea bargaining arrangement in which the District Attorney abruptly changed his plea to guilty prior to presenting any defense in his trial before Judge Walter Gex III in U.S. District Court in Biloxi.

The charge involved Cannon's alleged concealment of $12,099 from U.S. Bankruptcy Court.

Governor Ray Mabus is expected to appoint a temporary successor to Cannon with as little delay as possible. The person he chooses will serve until a special election in November.

Ex-supervisor labels drug charge 'set-up'

A former Hancock County supervisor arrested in Slidell, La., on a drug charge is calling the incident "a set-up."

Jerry Ladner, now a Waveland businessman, was booked early Sunday, Feb. 19, by Slidell Police Department and charged with possession of a substance believed to be cocaine.

A spokesman for the police department said the investigation is continuing into the matter. Ladner has been released on $8,000 bond.

Ladner, who served as supervisor from 1972 to 1975 and later made unsuccessful bids for other offices, was reportedly stopped at the Slidell Ramada Inn and gave the officer who stopped him permission to search his van.

"The charges are a set-up and I have contacted the FBI, Hancock County sheriff and Waveland police chief and I also have some private detectives looking into the matter," Ladner said. "I have also contacted some elected officials in Washington."

"I am ready to take a lie detector test to clear me of these drug charges."

"I have never held any illegal drugs in my hands or taken any and I have no knowledge of determining one from another."

ON PATROL

RAPE

A Bay St. Louis man was arrested by Hancock County Sheriff's Department Monday and charged with rape.

Terry J. Jones, 39, of Route 4, Box 474 was arrested for the alleged rape of a 15 year old girl at his home on Edith Drive, according to Sheriff's Investigator Glen Strong.

Jones has been released from Hancock County Jail on a $5,000 bond.

Audubon Zoo to sponsor 'Black Heritage Festival'

For the fourth consecutive year Audubon Zoo will serve as the central site for the Louisiana Black Heritage Festival. On the weekend of Feb. 25 and 26, Audubon Zoo will join the Louisiana Black Heritage Festival Committee in celebrating the 'Black Male' and the black culture in Louisiana.

Visitors can experience the festival through music, food, drama and cultural displays. "There will be three performance areas again this year to triple the fun and excitement of the Black Heritage Festival," said zoo executive director Ron Foreman.

"We invite everyone to enjoy jazz and rhythm and blues at the Hibernia Pavilion. Gospel music lovers can visit the Miller Beer Garden, and you can experience black history through historical vignettes and dances at Wendy's Wildlife Theatre," said Foreman.

The best in creole and soul food will be served by local restaurateurs, and craftsmen will display their wares. "Who Am I" characters will help festival-goers explore black history even more.

The Louisiana Black Heritage Festival will be highlighted by the musical talent of Charmaine Neville, Germaine Bazzle and the George French Band, Earl Turbinton and the James Rivers Movement.

Sponsors for the fourth annual Louisiana Black Heritage Festival are AT&T, Adolph Coors, Liberty Bank, Rhodes Transportation, The French Market Corporation, Middle South Utilities, WDSU-TV Channel 6 and WYLD-Radio. The Black Heritage Festival is free with zoo admission or membership.

First GCCC baseball game scheduled Sunday

The Gulf Coast Community College Bulldogs play their first home baseball game on Sunday, Feb. 26, meeting Bishop State at 1 p.m. on the Perkinson Campus.

Although the season is just beginning, veteran coach Ken Farris says "things look pretty good with 13 returning sophomores and a bevy of promising freshmen on the squad."

Farris, who will retire at the end of the season after 27 years as GCCC's baseball coach, said "the team is the most promising I've seen in the last 10 years."

He said the 1988 squad "looked bad until mid-season, when the players turned it around, started getting base hits and doing things that looked like baseball."

But the last-ditch efforts weren't enough to earn a state playoff slot.

"We finished 24-20 overall and were one game shy of qualifying for post-season play—only the second time in 26 years that we'd missed the opportunity to compete for a title," Farris said.

In spite of what Farris described as "one of our worst seasons," 1988 brought the coach his 724th win.

This time around, Farris said he would like to win his 14th state championship. "We're stuck on number 13, and, until we win the state, we can't go anywhere," meaning to the National Junior College Athletic Association's regional playoffs and maybe the nationals.

To go the whole route, Farris said he will be counting heavily on returnees like second baseman Cook Lewis of Gulfport; right fielder Terry Graves of Pascagoula; and outfielder Martin Logan of Pass Christian.

Lewis led the Bulldogs in hits last year, batting .395. Graves finished with a .365 and Logan with a .340.

Other players Farris is watching include first baseman Joey Cannizzaro of Covington, La.; third baseman Keith Marsland of Biloxi and Norbert Melan of New Orleans.

The pitching staff is composed of sophomores Jones Ard of Loranger, La.; Kevin McElveen of Amite, La.; and Billy Richardson of Ocean Springs.

"We also have some good freshmen prospects, and we'll expect them to step in and help the pitching staff," Farris said.

He said, "Defensively, we'll have a good ball club. I don't know how well we'll do hitting the ball, but I believe we'll be competitive in that department, too."

Here is the schedule of home games, all double headers:

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The Coast Encounters, A Space-age Adventure in Science Literacy for the Mississippi Gulf Coast, sounds like an exciting enterprise for area students.

The program is designed to encourage today's students to excel in the higher math and science fields needed to fill the personnel needs at the space center around the year 2000.

It wasn't too many years ago when the majority of students educated in Hancock County schools would have to set their sights on employment elsewhere after receiving a college degree.

It is good to see so many concerned leaders and educators placing emphasis on higher education for our students who will be our leaders of tomorrow.

The Space Encounters announcement was officially made Friday at a press conference in Biloxi by Mississippi First Lady Julie Mabus and NASA officials.

Traveling exhibits will be placed in several locations to help promote awareness, with workshops and exhibits at schools from April 16 to May 5.

The 138 Gulf Coast and Pearl River County Schools will all be involved during the two-week period.

Buz Olsen, Hancock County Port and Harbor executive director, is chairman of the Community Steering Committee, and his group has been working very hard in preparation for the big event.

One must remember, a high percentage of jobs at the John C. Stennis Space Center are highly technical. At the announcement, Roy Estess, Space Center director, said the site has openings for engineers and scientists.

NASA is going to provide in-kind services such as supplying the resource people who will visit the schools, while the Community Involvement Steering Committee will be working on, among other things to raise some of the funds to cover some of the finances needed.

If your corporation, business or you, yourself would like to help, give the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce or Olsen a call.

Our future is in our youth of today.

I really enjoyed some fresh boiled crabs Sunday evening at my brother Raymond's.

I was rather surprised to hear that he had caught them out front.

It seems the first crabs of the season always taste the best, even having to spend the time it takes to pick them.

I have always enjoyed seafood from our waters as it was a part of our diet when we were growing up.

I can still remember the nights of floundering with the old flambeaux torches, the carbide lights for frogging and the nights on the seawall casting for shrimp.

The shrimp seemed to come in during the cooler months and a good fire was necessary while shrimping. We really enjoyed the roasted crabs and shrimp we would throw into the hot coals.

Those are just memories.

Each year Mississippi's governor designates a week as Severe Weather Week, and this week just happens to be 1989's.

It seemed that Monday night's weather placed even greater emphasis on Mississippi's Severe Weather Week.

I spoke to several folks on Tuesday morning and they reported the thunder and heavy rains caused them, like me, to lose some sleep on Monday night.

A tornado drill at every school in the county this week is part of the Severe Weather Week events, Civil Defense director Robert Boudin said.

We should always pay attention to weather reports, especially when they are of a severe type such as tornadoes, hurricanes or thunderstorms.

The folks in states like Kentucky sure have been having their problems with flooding because of heavy rains in recent days.

Even in Hancock County, heavy rains in the central part of the state can cause flooding in some areas in the vicinity of the Pearl River.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Battle of Bennington outlined by encyclopedia

Dear Editor:

Will Rogers has been frequently quoted as saying, "All I know is what I read in the papers."

Well, all that I know is what I read in the World Book Encyclopedia. I have been told there is a difference of opinion concerning the role the Battle of Bennington played in our Revolutionary War, so I quote from Vol. 16:

"Bennington was a major battle in the Revolutionary War. It was fought in Vermont on August 16, 1777. Stark was the American commander.

There were 80 American casualties and 900 British casualties."

Thomas Paine declared that this war, which brought about the birth of the United States, "contributed more to enlighten the world and diffuse a spirit of freedom and liberality among mankind than any human event that ever preceded it."

OUR HERITAGE

The First Cabinet

When George Washington appointed his first Cabinet, he not only started a tradition that is followed to this day, he set a standard of excellence and gave our country's political party system its start.

Inaugurated in April 1789, Washington began selecting the four members of his Cabinet in September. Henry Knox, a distinguished officer in the Revolutionary War, had served in the pre-Constitution government as secretary of war and was asked to stay on in that position. Washington next named Alexander Hamilton to be his secretary of the treasury and Thomas Jefferson, who had written the Declaration of Independence, to be secretary of state. Edmund Randolph was named attorney general.

While Knox and Randolph served the new president well, Washington's other two Cabinet members stand as giants in American history. From the outset of their duties, Hamilton and Jefferson were at odds with each other. Hamilton was a strong believer in the executive powers of the new government and set out to use his position not only to control the finances of the United States but to influence Washington's policies in all areas of the government. He established the Bank of the United States and founded our national currency system.

Hamilton's beliefs were in direct conflict with Jefferson's philosophy of government by the Constitution. Jefferson believed that Hamilton was subverting the wishes of the majority of our country's citizens and was endangering the new government. Although Washington utilized the thinking of both men, the secretary of the treasury's advice ended up influencing policy more than that of the secretary of state.

Both men eventually resigned from Washington's Cabinet. Jefferson on December 31, 1793, and Hamilton on January 31, 1795. Because of their strong political beliefs, however, their often bitter political battles were not over. The men became symbols for the two emerging political parties—Jefferson of the Democratic-Republican party and Hamilton of the Federalist party—that started our traditional two-party system.

Jefferson became vice president in 1797 during John Adams' presidency and our third president in 1801.

Hamilton returned to private life but continued to be an important American voice. Ironically, it was Hamilton's political battle with John Adams that split the Federalist Party and led to Jefferson's election in 1800. In 1804, Hamilton was shot to death in a duel with political opponent Aaron Burr.

Few Cabinet members over the course of history have distinguished themselves as did Hamilton and Jefferson. Although there are many more Cabinet posts today, no law has ever been established requiring a president to designate and hold meetings with his Cabinet. The Cabinet remains part of what is known as our "unwritten Constitution." ■

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

New state constitution possible without convention

A 1988 state Supreme Court case may well trigger the Mississippi Legislature into simplifying the process for a massive rewriting of the state constitution without a constitutional convention.

To the consternation of many lawmakers, the state's high court had split 4 to 4 last August on the interpretation of Section 273 of the constitution, the section which provides how amendments to the constitution may be submitted to the voters.

In the wake of the court's division on the meaning of Section 273, both branches of the Legislature have moved to broaden the scope of the section in order to give lawmakers more flexibility in amending the constitution.

Some lawmakers see the move as both a legislative response to the court as well as a vehicle to make broad revisions of the 1890 constitution in view of the Legislature's apparent resistance to calling a constitutional convention.

Four high court members, led by Presiding Judge Armis Hawkins, had accused the Legislature of "logrolling" by giving the Legislature power to distribute property taxes from the Grand Gulf Nuclear Generating Plant in Claiborne County as part of a 1986 constitutional amendment that revised statewide classification of property tax ratios.

Hawkins charged in his opinion that the way the proposition was presented to the voters was "a frightening example of logrolling" and violated the prohibition against requiring separate amendments for different subjects under Section 273.

He defined logrolling in a proposed constitutional amendment as "unnecessary inclusion within the same proposed amendment of more than one proposition to be voted on in which the voter may very well wish to see one put into effect, but the other defeated."

On the other side, four judges had lined up supporting the way the amendment was presented, on grounds that the overall subject of the proposition including the nuclear power plant related to property classification for ad valorem tax purposes.

The ninth member of the court at the time of the ruling last August, Justice Joseph Zuccaro, had not taken part.

Justice James Robertson, speaking for the four backers of the amendment said it "may fairly be read as relating to a single subject or subject matter: classification of property for ad valorem taxation purposes and nothing in Section 273 invalidates (the resolution submitting the amendment)."

But because of the apparent division on the court as to the meaning of Section 273, a proposed constitutional amendment sponsored by Rep. Eric Clark of Taylorsville broadening the scope of how amendments may be submitted to the people recently won wide House approval.

A slightly different version of a proposed new Section 273 has also cleared the Senate.

The key language in Clark's measure is that amendments may be submitted in one resolution which provide amendments to both "one or more" articles of the Constitution and relating to "different subject matter."

Clark admits he had not originally introduced his proposal with the Supreme Court case in mind, "but it seems the court case may have brought that response from some others who are supporting my resolution."

The broadened scope of Section 273, Clark said, "would give us more flexibility in proposing amendments to the constitution, and if we really get serious about rewriting the constitution by amendment, as many said they wanted to do, this certainly would facilitate the process."

One interesting point in Presiding Judge Hawkins' opinion on Section 273 was a reference to a 1922 ruling by the Supreme Court that had invalidated under that section a 1916 constitutional amendment giving Mississippians the power of initiative and referendum.

"In my opinion," Hawkins wrote, "the Initiative and Referendum Amendment did not violate Section 273 as then written."

Some legislative backers are taking heart from Hawkins' observation that if a test case can put the 1916 initiative and referendum back before the court, it would be restored.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

House majority approves public funds for private drives

Last fall, 62 percent of Mississippi's voters spoke to the issue of improved county road management. Overwhelmingly, voters said they wanted counties to operate more efficiently—and with more accountability—in the management of these systems.

Apparently that message did not reach a majority of the members of the Mississippi House of Representatives.

Just a few days ago, a majority of the House members agreed to permit county supervisors to return to the practice of providing public services for private benefit. A majority of House members voted to permit county supervisors to use public funds to gravel private drives.

Fortunately for all taxpayers, the other side of the Capitol—the Senate—and the Governor still have a voice in that decision.

Chances are county supervisors won't be given the right to use tax dollars to benefit the favored few. Hopefully, when the vote comes up again, House members will be reminded that 62 percent of Mississippi's voters said in the statewide vote on county unit they had had enough.

Bennett seeks election to Bay mayor position

Former two-term mayor Larry J. Bennett has announced his candidacy for a third term as mayor of Bay St. Louis.

Bennett, 50, currently is employed as an office manager with Joyce B. Incorporated in Waveland. Prior to serving as mayor, he had served the city as an interim tax collector.

A native of Bay St. Louis, he and his wife, the former Joan Corso, have four children, Al, Brian, Desiree and Jesse.

"Having worked eight and one-half years for the people of Bay St. Louis, I have the experience, knowledge and dedication to get our city back to a more affordable place in which to live and raise our families. During my tenure of public service, I worked closely with other local officials which enabled me to initiate and accomplish many projects. I will re-establish the harmonious relationship we so desperately need.

I have coordinated with investors in the development of Marketown Shopping Center, Shieldsboro Square, and other enterprises to broaden the local tax base. We must continue to broaden this tax base as we protect the quality of our residential areas.

"I have acquired state and federal funding which enriched the city with such improvements as the revamping of the first and last blocks of Main Street, Central Avenue, and others; installed water and sewer age lines in some unimproved areas and installed many miles of new gas lines throughout the city.

"The city must operate within its means and stop the soaring utility bills, property taxes that have skyrocketed and salaries for city administrators that have increased over 100 percent in four years. The city must return to a pay as we go system to eliminate future tax increases. In my management of the city, improvements were made for the Senior Citizen Center, fire and police departments, city beautification program, and parks and playgrounds without once in eight years increasing taxes," Bennett said.

"I will once again be a mayor with a door that is always open to your office. Not a mayor who has a list of preferred citizens. I am not affiliated with any political factions."

Atlantis crew to speak to Space Center employees

Astronaut crew members scheduled to fly aboard Space Shuttle Atlantis in April will meet with employees at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center Friday as a gesture of thanks for their support to the nation's space transportation system.

Air Force Col. Ronald Grabe, pilot for the STS-30 flight, and Dr. Norman Thagard, a mission specialist, will visit the center's shuttle main engine test complex at the base of the A-2 stand at 3:15 p.m. Friday to thank the test teams on behalf of the astronaut crews, specifically for the quick turnaround in testing the replacement oxidizer turbo-pumps for Discovery's upcoming March flight.

Last week Stennis test teams shipped the new pumps to the Kennedy Space Center where they replaced pumps which were believed to have faulty bearing assemblies.

Grabe and Thagard, along with three other crew members, are targeted to go into space April 28 aboard Atlantis for a four-day mission which will send the planetary probe Magellan on its path to Venus. Magellan is scheduled to reach Venus in mid-1990 to map the entire surface of the planet for the first time using specialized radar instruments.

With Discovery set to lift off some time in mid-March, Atlantis is being readied by shuttle processing crews to move to the pad as soon after that launch as possible. In order to get the Magellan probe on its proper trajectory to Venus, NASA only has a set window from April 28 to May 23 in which to launch Atlantis. If the launch does not go then, Venus will not be in proper alignment with Earth again for the Magellan project until 1991.

KNIGHTS FLAG—Chancellor and past Grand Knight Bob Hubbard displays the flag presented to Pere le Duc Grand Knight Teddy Morel this week. (Photo by Janet McQueen)

Pere le Duc Knights rewarded for increasing membership

The international office of the Knights of Columbus has announced that Pere le Duc Knights of Columbus Council No. 1522 in Bay St. Louis has been named a winner of the organization's 1988 'Share the Spirit' membership contest.

In recognition of their achievement, the local group has been awarded an official Knights of Columbus flag. The K of C flag was offered as an incentive to those councils that recorded a 5 percent net gain in membership for the period Jan. 1-Dec. 31, 1988.

It is the first official flag in the 106-year history of the Knights of Columbus, and its design combines blue and red from the order's emblem, yellow from the papal flag and white and green from the expeditionary flag of Christopher Columbus, the order's patron.

The flag incentive was conducted in conjunction with an ongoing 'Share the Spirit' membership recruitment campaign. Throughout 1988, Knights were asked to recruit new members in honor of the supreme chaplain of the Knights of Columbus, Bishop Thomas V. Daily.

In total, more than 100,000 new new members were recruited orderwide during the 1988 calendar year. A new phase of 'Share the Spirit' has been instituted for 1989, honoring all members of Catholic clergy.

The Knights of Columbus is a Catholic, family, fraternal, service organization founded in New Haven, Conn. in 1882. Currently, the Knights have nearly 1.5 million dues-paying members who belong to 9,500 local councils throughout North America and the Philippines.

Rogers, president; Janice Lynn, vice president; Jewel Brown, treasurer; Lucia Schaal, secretary; and Cynthia Diktaban, secretary. The new board of directors includes Dr. Connie Chevis, Bill Devrow, Ruth Patterson and John Sindors.

"We were pleased with the number of members who attended the election and want to thank them for their participation. The society hopes that the numbers of members continues to grow," a spokesperson for the society said.

There will be a special membership meeting on Sunday, Feb. 26 at 2 p.m. at Jolly Rogers Printing on Hwy. 90 in Bay St. Louis.

To be voted on: In addition to the monthly allowance of $400, $1,000 will be taken from the Humane Society's savings account to be added to the spay/neuter program in the month of March. This is in an attempt to curb the spring puppy and kitten population explosion.

Members are welcome and encouraged to attend.

Selecting a tax preparer

This year, three of every four individual returns filed will call for a check to be written by (instead of to) Uncle Sam. The average refund may top $900 for the first time.

The sooner you complete your taxes, the sooner you may receive one of the 75 million tax refunds mailed this year. If you're hesitating to do your own tax preparation due to confusion over the changes brought about by the Tax Reform Act of 1986, you may want to consider turning to a professional for assistance.

The Federal Trade Commission offers the following guidelines in determining whether you need a tax preparer and, if so, how to select one.

Before you decide to hire a tax preparer, make sure you really need to pay for the assistance. With a little help from the IRS, you may be able to do as good a job as a commercial tax preparer. Of course, this depends on the complexity of your tax situation.

If you use the short (1040A) form, the IRS will complete most of it for you and compute your taxes for free. If you have questions about how to complete your return, you may be able to get answers by using the IRS free informational resources.

If you remain uncertain about how to do your taxes, you may want to begin to 'comparison shop' for a suitable tax preparer.

To find a tax preparer that best suits your needs, call several and ask the preparer about their training or experience in preparing returns.

Determine how the preparer checks for accuracy and if someone else will double check the return. If so, find out if it will be reviewed for arithmetic errors only or for errors in tax-law interpretation.

Ask how much preparing your taxes will cost and how that fee is determined. Also, find out if the preparer can be reached later in the year if you should need help with an audit.

Determine whether the preparer can represent you in an audit and how much it will cost.

Even though you have hired someone to prepare your returns, you are personally liable for any additional interest or penalty, even if you have a written guarantee that the preparer will pay any interest or penalty assessed as a result of his or her work.

Here are some ways to help you get the best possible work done on your return:

Gather and take to the preparer any information or documents that might apply to your taxes, including your last year's return. Remember, too much information is better than too little.

Make a list of any tax-related questions that occur to you and ask the preparer about them. After your return is prepared, check it to make sure all the information is correct.

You will have an advantage if you complete your tax return early. The earlier you have your taxes prepared, the more time busy tax preparers will have to do a thorough job for you.

Also, if you file early in February and are entitled to a refund, you may have the check in your hands within a month; wait until April 17 and it could take two and a half months to receive your money.

Floyd to seek third term in Chancery Court, Place 2

Ten-year judicial veteran Judge Jason Floyd Jr. has announced his plans to seek another term in office.

The 55-year-old Floyd, who has spent over a decade presiding over Stone, Harrison and Hancock County Chancery Court, Place 2, says there's simply no substitute for the experience he's gained during his tenure on the bench.

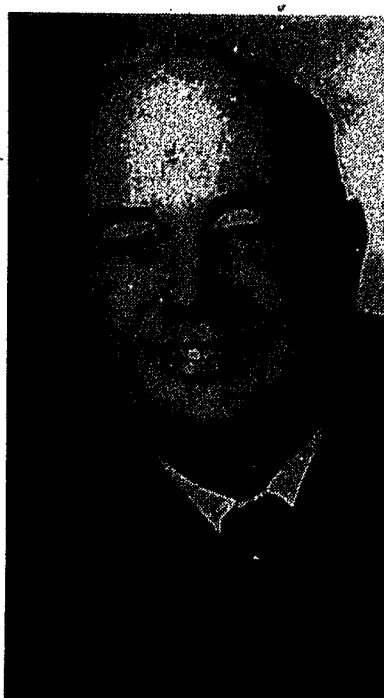

"Many of these cases are family matters," said Floyd, who along with his wife of 33 years, Kitty, has raised three children.

"Deciding other people's futures is very delicate business. My years of experience can only benefit those whose cases come into my courtroom."

Floyd's performance as a judge has been widely recognized over the years. The Junior Bar Association has rated him among the best sitting judges on the Coast, and Floyd has also been elected president of Mississippi's Conference of Chancery Court Judges.

An Air Force veteran, Floyd later graduated first in his class at Ole Miss Law School. While there, he served as editor-in-chief of the Mississippi Law Journal.

A former president of the

JASON FLOYD JR.

Harrison County Bar Association, Floyd has served as municipal judge, city attorney and school board attorney in his hometown of Pass Christian where he resides today.

Floyd will appear on the Democratic ticket during primary voting on Apr. 4.

Mississippi still top state for tree farms

Mississippi continues to have more certified tree farms than any other state in the nation, according to figures just released by the American Forest Council.

Everard Baker, 1989 Tree Farm chairman for Mississippi, announces that approximately 250 new tree farms in the state received their certification last year, bringing the total number of certified tree farms in the state to 5,366.

Mississippi Forestry Association (MFA), a nonprofit organization of timberland owners, foresters and forest industry companies, sponsors the Tree Farm Program in Mississippi.

To be certified, a tree farm must be managed in accordance with accepted scientific forest management practices. Goals of the tree farm program are to produce commercial forest crops on a renewable basis, whole protecting soil, water and wildlife.

Mississippi has approximately 1,400 more tree farms than any other state in the nation.

rated second, has 3,984 certified tree farms.

Baker urges landowners who have tree farms or who have planted trees under the Conservation Reserve Program and have other forestland to contact MFA at 620 N. State Street, Suite 201, Jackson, MS 39202-3398 (phone: 601-354-4936) to find out how to have their tree farms certified.

Pass Christian native's stamp design is winner

Debra Aven Swartzendruber of Smithville this week was chosen the 1989-1990 winner of the annual Waterfowl Stamp Competition sponsored by the Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation.

Swartzendruber's 'Sweet Gum Woodies,' an acrylic painting of a pair of wood ducks, was judged best of show by a panel of three judges: Steve Kirkpatrick of Jackson, a professional wildlife photographer; Tommy Shropshire of Jackson, a duck taxidermist; and Sidney Woodson of Poplarville, special agent and pilot with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Thirty works were entered in the competition.

Swartzendruber, 33, is a native of Oxford with a master's of fine arts degree from the University of Mississippi. She teaches 5th through 8th grade art and enrichment courses at Amory Middle School.

Married to John Swartzendruber, she is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Russell E. Aven of Oxford.

"Wildlife is my love," said the artist, who describes her style as 'super-realism.'

"I try to include some form of wildlife in all my paintings, and waterfowl is a main interest."

Swartzendruber, who has entered the competition for nine years, said she doesn't believe an artist ever 'finishes' a painting.

"You learn from each painting, and at some point you finally decide that you're satisfied," she said.

In the case of 'Sweet Gum Woodies' she said she was satisfied when she achieved a certain lighting effect. Swartzendruber's artwork will appear on the 1989-1990 waterfowl stamp, which will be issued later this year.

The top 15 entries in the competition will be on exhibit

March 15-May 15 at the Mississippi Museum of Natural Science, 111 N. Jefferson Street in Jackson.

Dried beans provide variety, protein

Looking for an economical, lower calorie, low fat, 'stick to your ribs' protein source? Many varieties of dried beans are great protein sources for a wonderful cold-weather meal.

The dry bean family is large and colorful—more than 180 varieties. The most common beans are pea beans, red kidneys, limas, marrows, yelloweyes, pinto, Great Northern and garbanzos or chickpeas.

Pea (navy) beans are small, white, oval beans. Different kinds vary somewhat in size. They are used for baked beans, soups and casseroles.

Great Northern beans are larger than navy beans, but have the same white color. They are somewhat flat in shape. They are used in soups, salads, casserole dishes and home baked beans.

Lima (butterbeans) are broad and flat. Baby limas are smaller than standard limas but similar in shape. These are used in many delicious and inexpensive dishes. This bean is both eaten green and used dried.

Kidney beans come in two types: the 'dark red' and the more common 'light red.' Some kidney beans are white. They are used for baked beans, in chili con carne and other Mexican dishes and add zest to salads.

Yelloweye beans are white, medium-sized beans with brown markings.

Pinto (Indian beans) are the same species as the kidney and red bean. They are the beige-colored and speckled bean from the Western United States—the bean of Mexico.

Garbanzo (chickpeas) look like a large misshapen pea, are nut-flavored and commonly pickled in vinegar and oil for salads.

Nutritional Value
Dry beans are among the least expensive sources of protein, iron and two of the B vitamins—thiamine and riboflavin.

Beans are good pinch-hitters for meat, especially if combined in the same meal with some protein-rich food from an animal source such as milk, eggs or cheese. The protein from these other foods helps make the protein from beans more useful to the body.

The size of a typical serving of cooked dry beans is three-fourths cup. Servings of cooked dry beans of different colors and shapes are similar in food value.

Baking beans with tomatoes, pork or molasses changes their food value slightly, depending upon the amount added. Bean soup usually has less food value than a similar amount of cooked beans.

Uses
Dry peas and beans should be soaked, preferably overnight, before cooking. Cover each cup of beans with three cups of water, bring to a boil for two minutes, then soak in same water overnight. The two minutes of cooking tenderizes the beans and prevents souring during the soaking period.

After soaking, cook gently (in the same water they were soaked— with a minimum amount of stirring) until tender. You will have two and one-half cups of cooked beans for each cup of dry beans.

Cooking Beans

1. Cooking time varies according to the size of beans and the length of time in storage. Peas and smaller beans usually need less than one hour. Larger peas need 2 to 3 hours and soybeans 3 to 4 hours. Large dry limas may tenderize in less than an hour, however. Bring beans to boiling in soaking water, cover, and reduce heat to simmer. Test for tenderness by tasting.

2. Add 1 tablespoon of fat to cooking beans to control foaming.

3. Cooking beans 20 to 35 minutes in a pressure cooker is possible, but some authorities warn against this because beans tend to sputter and foam which can clog the vent. Never fill a pressure cooker more than three-fourths full.

A time table for pressure cooking beans is:

* Small beans, split beans, lentils, 20 minutes;

* Kidney and navy beans, 35 minutes;

* Soybeans, 40 minutes.

4. Since beans require long cooking, cook several pounds at once and freeze them to conserve energy. Frozen cooked beans have almost the same convenience as canned.

Thaw them quickly by setting the container in hot water. Drop a frozen chunk of beans directly into boiling soup, or place chunk in casserole in hot oven and add baked bean seasonings. Stir half an hour later and continue baking.

5. Cook beans just until they begin to tenderize. Add seasonings and liquid and bake slowly for 4 to 8 hours for a wonderful browned-in flavor. Native Americans taught New England colonists how to make these famed 'Boston Baked Beans' in earthen pots. Use that oven heat to good advantage. Bake rice pudding or plain rice, make granola or roast soybeans.

6. Avoid using soda in the cooking or soaking to make beans more socially acceptable because the soda destroys some of the nutritional value of the beans.

Dine with 'gusto' on pasta shell dish

In Rome, the capital of Italy, eating and enjoyment are one and the same. In fact, the world 'gusto' comes from the ancient Romans' word for 'to taste.' Typical fare is 'simple and hearty, but never dull. Roman Pasta Shells feature a robust blend of vegetables, eggs and cheese stuffed into 'lumache' (large-sized pasta shells) and baked in a savory sauce.

Along with good taste, Roman Pasta Shells rank high in nutrition. Pasta serves as a source of complex carbohydrates (experiment with whole wheat or spinach varieties, if you wish). Eggs are excellent contributors of high-quality protein and are classified in the meat category of the major food groups. Broccoli, a favorite Roman vegetable, is a vitamin and mineral powerhouse.

When preparing Roman Pasta Shells, hard-cook the eggs first so they can cool under running cold water while you cook the pasta. Since fresh eggs are harder to peel after hard-cooking, plan to use 1 to 2-week-old eggs.

Serve Roman Pasta Shells with sliced fresh tomatoes drizzled with basil dressing and crunchy breadsticks to add Italian flair.

ROMAN PASTA SHELLS

4 to 6 servings
1 package (10 oz.) frozen

chopped broccoli, thawed and well drained

1 cup (4 oz.) shredded mozzarella cheese

6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1/2 cup chopped green onions with tops

1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon marjoram leaves, crushed and divided

1 teaspoon basil leaves, crushed and divided
1/2 teaspoon salt

1 can (10 3/4 oz.) condensed golden mushroom soup, divided
1/2 cup milk

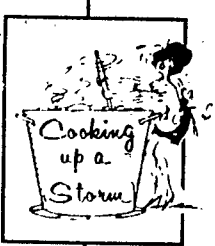

16 large pasta shells, cooked
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

In large bowl, toss together broccoli, mozzarella cheese.

eggs, onions, pepper 1/2 teaspoon marjoram, 1/2 teaspoon basil and salt. Stir in 1/2 can undiluted soup until well combined. Set aside.

For sauce, blend together milk and remaining soup and seasonings. Pour 1/2 cut of the sauce mixture evenly over bottom of 11 x 7 x 1 1/4-inch baking dish or pan.

Fill each pasta shell with about 1/4 cup reserved broccoli mixture and place in baking dish. Drizzle remaining sauce mixture over filled shells. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Cover and bake in preheated 350 degree oven 30 minutes. Remove foil. Bake until heated through, an additional 15 minutes.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Ever since the days of the early colonists in America, the apple has been a symbol of hospitality in our country, from sharing of a tankard of apple cider in the taverns to hot apple pie and cheese for dessert—and what about the 'apple for the teacher'?

The colonists had prudently tucked apple seeds amongst their belongings when they journeyed to the shores of the new world, and apple trees flourished in New England and Virginia as well. As settlers trekked westward in later years, they usually made room in their wagons for apple seedlings, and planted their orchards as soon as they set up their homesteads.

So, today, just as in those days, apples are favorites, and apple pie remains one of our most favorite of favorites, no matter how many and how varied the other desserts. I think, most of the time, that apple dumplings are my first choice, easily made and delicious!

Here's:

APPLE DUMPLINGS WITH CIDER SAUCE
6 apples, pared and cored
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
2 Tbsp. butter
Crust for dumplings
2 cups biscuit mix
2/3 cup apple cider

(Or, you may prefer to make your own pie crust, or use a ready-mix. I like this dough for dumplings.)

Peel and core the apples, as above. Mix the sugar, butter (or margarine) and nutmeg and cinnamon together. Stir the biscuit mix and cider together to make the dough, then divide the dough into six, and roll each portion into a square large enough to envelop the apple.

Place each apple in the center of its square. Fill the center of the apple with the brown sugar mixture, and press the dough around the apple, dampening the edges to make it easier. Bake (on baking sheet) for half an hour at 350 degrees.

Meanwhile, make your sauce—just combine a cup of apple cider, a half to a cup of brown sugar and a quarter of a cup of butter or margarine, depending upon your sweet tooth, and bring to a boil, then pour over the dumplings and serve forthwith. (Six servings.)

These are delicious without the cider, but it does add a certain something! You may make the sauce with brown sugar and butter, adding apple juice or water instead of the cider.

I often like to enlarge the cavity when I core the apple, and stuff in some chopped pecans and raisins, along with the sugar mixture, and a dash of chopped lemon ring—and, I almost forgot to tell you, be sure to cut small incisions around the middle of the apple, to keep it from bursting.

As for the kind of apples to use. I prefer Rome Beauty or Winesap, for their tartness, but suit your own palate—and enjoy!

Lady Tigers place second in division tournament

By BHS Correspondents

The District VIII Division 16 Basketball Tournament played at Bay High's Tiger Dome on Feb. 15, 17 and 18 resulted in the Stone County Tomcats claiming the division championship in boys' action and the Pass Christian Lady Pirates gaining the girls' championship. In the finals, Stone County defeated Vancleave, 81-39, while the Lady Pirates fought a solid contest and took a 54-42 victory over the Lady Tigers of Bay High.

All four basketball teams who participated in the finals advanced to the first round of the South Mississippi Basketball Tournament. Girls' action began on the 20th and boys' on the 21st.

The tournament, hosted by Bay High, was rated a success by Bay High Head Coach Michael Ladner.

"The tournament ran very smoothly," stated Ladner.

"Although it involves much work in hosting a series of this kind, the coaches, administrators, officials and fans all enjoy coming to our facility, and we were fortunate to see some good basketball."

Ladner added, "We appreciate all those who came out in support of the basketball teams and commend the conduct of all those in attendance. Thank you."

Wednesday Night

The tournament opened in grand fashion with the Pearl River Central Lady Devils producing an exciting two overtime period win to finally dispose of the Lady Bulldogs, 60-52.

Bay High was led by Cedric Walker with 25 points, Alvin Dedeaux with 10 and Mike Scharp added nine to the Tiger effort.

Coach Ladner commented on the game, "We were defeated by the end of the first quarter and 33-27 at halftime.

However, the team caught fire in the third quarter outscoring Stone 15-3 and holding the Tomkittens off in the fourth quarter to preserve the victory. Kinta Ladner led Bay High in go with her scoring while Walker also had nine caroms.

Stone County was led by Tondia Evans with 23 points.

In the first boys' game of the evening, Pearl River Central, after playing an outstanding game on Wednesday, ran into a throughout with it being much closer than the final score of 54-42 might indicate. The senior experience of Pass High proved to be too much for their opponent as senior Candice Pavoline pumped in 17 points and senior Stacey Theobald dropped in nine points on the night.

Bay High was led by Kinta Ladner with 13 points and Deborah Deloach had 12. Tunisia McKay had eight points and eight rebounds while Dee-Dee McGowan added five assists.

After the game, Ladner commented, "I am very proud of the girls. They showed a lot of determination in trying to bring the division title to Bay High, but lack of experience proved to be our most formidable opponent tonight."

"The girls can leave the gym tonight with their heads held high and look forward to Monday night and the South State tournament."

The boys' championship put two Mississippi top-20 teams, Stone County and Vancleave, competing for the division title. However, it was not the contest everyone was anticipating as Stone County malled Vancleave 81-39.

Stone County was led by Dante Galloway with 23 points and Joe-Joe Brown with 17.

Monti Noblitt led Vancleave with 16 points.

In the second girls' game of the evening Pass High advanced to the finals with a 59-44 victory over Pearl River Central.

The Lady Pirates were led by senior LaSonya Swainer with 18, Candice Pavoline with 11 and Stacey Theobald with 10. Wendy Palmer of PRC led all scorers in their final game with 20 points.

Bay Area Youth Soccer fifth week standings told

Bay Area Youth Soccer has now completed over half of the spring season. After five weeks of league competition, three teams in the Under-8 to Under-12 divisions remain undefeated.

The Under-10 Rotary Falcons are leading their divisions, undefeated, and have not been tied by a team. The Under-12 Hurricanes are leading their division with three wins and one tie.

In Under-12, the Burger King Whoppers were defeated by the Hurricanes 3-2. Whopper goals were scored by Leo Laurent and Joshua Wilson. Coach Laurent stated: "The entire team should be congratulated for a well-played game. Throughout the game the entire team showed a lot of hustle with the score being tied until the last few seconds of the game. Both teams should be congratulated for an exciting soccer game."

McDonald Realty tied Ocean Springs 2-2, with goals scored by Corey Gex and Andy Harris.

In Under-10 play, Coach Richard Flowers' Rotary Falcons defeated Coach Lenfant's Hurricanes team by a score of 1-0. Forward Paul Campo scored the Falcon goal. Patrick Kimbrell was the most improved player for the Falcons.

The Hurricanes played their best defensive game of the year. Even though the game was lost, the Hurricanes held the Falcons who are the highest scoring team in the league (point standings) to the one goal which was scored on a corner kick.

The Hurricane defense was led by Jeremy Braud, and the excellent goal keeping of Philip Ryan. It was a game for all team members to be proud of. Coach Demboski's Jaguars defeated Coach Peoples' Bad Blues Saturday 7-2 with a fine show of team effort by all players. Goals for the Jaguars were scored by Justin Boudouin, Ty McMichael, Kippy Chamberlain, Marc Mortimer, Cooper Ladner and Cory Ray.

Defensive players Brandon Everett, Seth Johnson, Kyle Mann and Honore Hazeur are all recognized for their improved playing and contribution in winning the game.

In a Sunday afternoon game against Craig Foster's Bay Rats, the Jaguars battled to a 0-0 score in a thrilling defensively played game by both teams.

Coach Foster congratulated his team on a fine effort. In an obvious defensive struggle, the goalkeeper Chris Foster was cited for his second good game in the goal.

Also, Justin Wadsworth, Brantley Ladner, J. C. Nettles, Gary Hughes, Chad Collier and Chris Gibson were defensive standouts.

In last week's unreported game, Kyle Foster and Brantley Ladner scored goals in the 4-2 loss to the Rotary Falcons. Also in Sunday afternoon play, Coach Peoples' Bad Blues defeated Coach Lenfant's Hurricanes.

In Under-8 play, Coach Steve Carver's Sweepers defeated Coach Jimmy Rutherford's Stingers by a score of 4-0. Dusty Carver scored three goals and Steve Peterman scored one.

Good defensive play was shown by Gus McKay and Donnie Shiel.

In Sunday afternoon play, the Sweepers defeated Coach Carron's Tornados by a score of 8-1. Dusty Carver scored two goals, Steve Peterman scored three, Ronnie Vanney scored one, and Chris Genin scored two.

The Tornados scored the second goal to be scored against the Sweepers this season.

Coach Christine Ross' Raiders defeated Coach Carron's

Tornados in an exciting Saturday afternoon match by a score of 2-1. Mike Carron's team was ahead at half-time by 1-0.

In the third quarter, the Raiders tied the game with a goal by Chad Develle, then the winning goal was put in by Jason Rieben.

It was an exciting game to the last minute of the game. Coach Ross cited Matt Powell for most improved player. Both teams should be commended for fine team play.

In Sunday afternoon play the Raiders defeated Coach Kingston's Chargers.

Goals were scored by Jonathan Gagnon, Billy Kenny, Tommy Kimbrell, Chris Flowers, John Mullens and Nicholas Middleton.

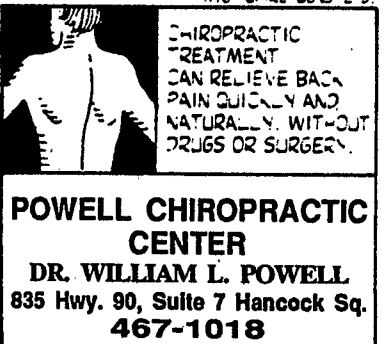

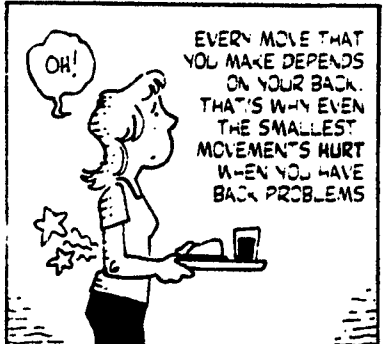

There was excellent team play by all players. Most improved player of the game was Walter Bolden. Most supportive player was mid-fielder Jason Rieben.

In Saturday afternoon play, Coach Timmy Kingston's Chargers tied coach Bill Ginn's Wildcats 2-2 in a most impressive and exciting game.

The Wildcats went on to defeat Coach Rutherford's Stingers 2-1 in Sunday afternoon play. All in all, it was a very exciting double-header weekend of soccer.

Space Center completes tests on turbopumps

Test teams at Stennis Space Center completed this week flight certification tests and inspections of three replacement high-pressure oxidizer turbopumps crucial to the TURBOPUMPS—Bob Purchner of Pass Christian, left, and George Paz of Slidell perform final checkout of a replacement oxidizer turbopump to be installed on Space Shuttle Discovery. launch of space shuttle Discovery next month.

The last of the pumps was shipped from Stennis to Kennedy Space Center in Florida Wednesday for workers to install them on Discovery's three main engines.

NASA's Boyce Mix, Marshall Space Flight Center's resident manager of the Shuttle Projects Office at Stennis said, the pumps went through green run testing for a duration of 530 seconds each on February 8, 10 and

12. Mix said the tests were essentially a mission simulation equivalent to the length of time the main engines are fired during an actual launch.

NASA officials decided to replace the oxidizer turbopumps on Discovery's main engines after technicians discovered cracks in one of the pumps used on the Atlantis flight in December 1988. The cracks, found in two of the pump's bearing assemblies, were caused by stress corrosion resulting from moisture trapped during the assembly process. Since Discovery's turbopumps underwent the same assembly process as those aboard Atlantis, NASA officials decided that replacement of the pumps was the safest course of action.

"We wanted to take action to be sure we eliminated the stress corrosion," said NASA's Arnold Aldrich, director of the National Space Transportation System. Aldrich pointed out that although pump sensors on the Atlantis engines had detected vibrations greater than normal during ascent, the pump still operated "well within acceptable performance."

Mix said the pumps were replaced with ones assembled to a new specification, to eliminate the moisture problem.

Launch of Discovery, with its five-man crew, is scheduled for mid-March. A final decision for liftoff will be made by senior management at a flight readiness review in Florida in early March.

THE AIDS QUARTERLY

Nine years after the puzzling epidemic first appeared, Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (AIDS) has become public health enemy number one. More than 80,000 American adults and children have contracted the disease, 45,000 have died and more than 3 million are thought to be infected.

'The AIDS Quarterly,' a new public television series hosted by Peter Jennings and premiering on Mississippi ETV at 9 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 28, seeks to bring the latest information to viewers along with in-depth interviews and analyses.

The first edition examines the extraordinary conversion of a military man—retired Admiral James Watkins—to the battle against AIDS. A former Chief of U.S. Naval Operations with no health policy experience, Watkins was appointed chairman of the Presidential Commission on Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) Epidemic by President Reagan in late 1987.

Although the commission and Watkins were attacked as lacking scientific expertise and ideological balance, the panel issued a landmark report, widely applauded as being fair, visionary and courageous. Looking at AIDS in the broadest possible terms, the commission called for strong federal measures to deal with problems of discrimination, privacy, health care and education connected with the disease.

St. Stanislaus announces Star Student, Teacher

Brother Paul Montero, principal of St. Stanislaus High School, announced that senior Ben Schepens has been named as the school's Star Student by the Mississippi Economic Council's Student Teacher Achievement Recognition Program.

BEN SCHEPENS

The selection was based on the student's high scholastic average for the first semester and his score on the American

RONALD ENGEL

College Test. Schepens selected Mr. Ronald Engel as the Star Teacher because in Schepens' opinion he had made the greatest contribution to his scholastic achievement.

Schepens, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schepens of Long Beach, is presently in his sixth year at St. Stanislaus.

He is a member of the National Honor Society, the Computer

Club, the Key Club and the Math and Science Team. He placed in the top ten percent in biology at the Mississippi State Math and Science Tournament, and he placed second in team competition at the University of South Alabama Computer Programming Competition.

He also placed second in Computer Fundamentals for Regional Junior Engineering Technical Society (JETS) Competition.

He has been an alpha honor roll student throughout his stay at St. Stanislaus, and he has been named as the Pepsi Student of the Month.

In addition he has received the Service Award in the National Honor Society. Schepens plans to study computer engineering and electrical engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Engel received his undergraduate degree at Southeastern Louisiana University. He taught at St. Stanislaus for 20 years, and in 1978 he was named 'Outstanding Biology Teacher in the State of Mississippi.' He is presently teaching at St. John's High School in Berkeley, Calif.

HEALTHNOTES

Contributed by Hancock Medical Center

Exercise, diet for the healthiest heart

Lack of exercise and improper diet are two of the major risk factors for heart disease, yet almost half of all Americans never exercise and consume foods high in fat and calories.

Because it improves circulation, exercise gives the average person more strength and endurance, decreases tension, promotes relaxation and, along with the proper diet, helps control weight.

Geoff Kergosien, physical therapist at Hancock Medical Center, explained that working the heart just under the maximum heart rate level will ensure a worthwhile workout.

"To determine the heart rate level at which you should work, just subtract your age from 220 and multiply by type percentage at which you want to work," Kergosien said. Most doctors recommend working at 80 percent of your maximum heart rate, which means multiplying by .80.

"To actually measure the rate, you'd count the number of beats in 15 seconds and multiply by four," Kergosien said. If the rate is not as high as the number calculated, you're not working hard enough. If it is higher than the number calculated, you should slow your pace.

Aerobic exercise, which requires your heart and lungs to work at maximum capacity, is better than isometric activity, which requires resistance against fixed or heavy objects and elevates blood pressure.

Isometric exercise, such as weightlifting, can help strengthen muscles but should be ideally combined with aerobic activity.

"Depending on each person's general health, some activities may be better for that person than others," Kergosien said.

"If a person has not been exercising regularly, he must begin slowly and then gradually increase the activity. It is important to follow a personalized fitness regime that is suited to individual health and fitness goals."

The foods you eat also play a major part in keeping your heart healthy. Consumption of saturated fats leads to high blood cholesterol levels and fatty deposits, which are direct causes of heart attacks.

"Often people are unaware of the amount of saturated fat in their food," said Jamie Rodenbaugh, consulting dietician with Hancock Medical Center. "Total fat intake of the average individual should be no more than 30 percent of total calories."

Rodenbaugh explained that saturated fats are those found in animal products such as meat, cheese and butter. Some vegetables are also a source for saturated fats, such as cocoa butter and coconut oil. Saturated fats are harmful to the heart because they raise cholesterol levels.

Monounsaturated fats, though having no effect on cholesterol levels, contain fat-dense calories. Olives, Olive oil, peanuts, peanut oil, peanut butter, pecans, cashews, almonds and avocados are sources of this type of fat. They, too, should be limited in consumption.

Polyunsaturated fats should be substituted for saturated fats whenever possible. The difference in the two is that polyunsaturated fats are in liquid form at room temperature, whereas saturated fats are solid.

Polyunsaturated fats should constitute 20 percent of daily calories and can be found in vegetable oils such as sunflower, soybean, corn and sesame.

When striving for a healthy heart, Rodenbaugh suggested a few "eat right" tips to keep in mind:

- * Use fat-free or low-fat dairy products
- * Choose lean meats (fish or chicken) rather than beef and pork
- * Increase consumption of fresh fruits and vegetables
- * Moderate alcohol consumption
- * Remove skin from poultry and trim fat from meat
- * Use ground round or ground chuck in place of ground beef, since they contain less fat

"Also, watching the amount of salt in your diet will help keep your heart healthy," Rodenbaugh said.

To develop the exercise and diet plan that's best for you, contact your physician, or call Hancock Medical Center at 467-9081.

Honda donates $1 million to Miss. State University

Honda Motor Company will donate $1 million to Mississippi State University over the next four years to provide fellowships for graduate students in engineering and to purchase equipment for the university's flight research laboratory.

Honda Fellowships for graduate students in five engineering disciplines will be provided through the earnings on an $800,000 endowment to be created from the gift. Equipment for the university's Raptor Flight Research Laboratory will be purchased with the remaining $200,000.

Both portions of the $1 million donation will be given in equal annual installments beginning this year.

Honda Scholars at the master's degree and doctoral degree levels will be designated in the fields of aerospace, chemical, electrical, industrial, and mechanical engineering. Initial annual stipends will be $10,000 for master's degree students and $12,000 for Ph.D. candidates.

A portion of the funds for graduate student fellowships will be dedicated to attracting black American graduate students.

"We value our relationship with Mississippi State University," said Hiroyuki Shimojima, senior managing director of Honda Research and Development Company, "and we are pleased to provide funds to help graduate engineering students pursue their studies at MSU. We hope these students will do their best in their academic pursuits and in promoting friendship and understanding among the peoples of the world."

The gift builds on a company-university relationship which dates from 1986, when Mississippi State and Honda Research and Development Company of Japan entered into a $1 million-plus research agreement.

ON ETV

WOMEN IN BLUES

Their talent, spirit and artistic legacy made the blues a part of American music. They were the great women of the blues and their story comes to Mississippi ETV when 'Wild Women Don't Have the Blues' airs at 10 p.m., Friday, Feb. 24.

Ida Cox, Alberta Hunter, Ma Rainey, Beasie Smith, Mamie Smith, Sippie Wallace and others brought the music, songs and humor of black Americans into the cultural mainstream and established the blues for the first time as a popular performing art.

'Wild Women Don't Have the Blues' is the story of these gutsy, determined women and how they sang their way out of poverty and became nationally known celebrities.

USM aids children with hearing problems

The School For Children with Impaired Hearing at the University of Southern Mississippi has received more than $66,000 in state funds to meet the unique educational needs of children with hearing problems.

The school qualifies for state Department of Education money for salaries, supplies and administration. These minimum funds are used to teach sign language and lip-reading, and to improve listening skills.

"The children we work with range in age from three to 15," said Linda Cubley, director of the school. "These kids are of normal intelligence, but many times we find that they have not had a chance to develop because of their hearing impairment."

Hearing-impaired children are admitted to the program if their school does not have a similar program, said Cubley. Presently children from Stone, Green, Marion, Jones and Forrest counties are enrolled.

"We know there are children out there who need this kind of training and are not getting it," said the director.

With proper training, a hearing-impaired child who might otherwise be employed as a menial laborer, could advance to a special junior college or technical school, she noted.

For more information about the school, call Linda Cubley at 266-5225.

Coast Writers Conference scheduled April 1

The First-Ever Gulf Coast Writers Conference is set for April 1, with winners in the current Writing Contest to be honored at a luncheon that day. Both the contest and the conference are sponsored by The Gulf Coast Writers Association and are open to all interested persons.

The all-day conference begins with 9 a.m. registration and coffee in Parker Hall at William Carey College on the Coast, Gulfport. Guests will be welcomed and speakers introduced at 9:30 a.m. with a plenary address to follow by Ruth Beebe Hill. Mrs. Hill is the author of the critically acclaimed best-seller Hanto Yo, a saga of American Indian culture resulting from 25 years of study and work.

Three concurrent information sessions will be offered from 11 a.m. to noon. Claudia Reilly, award-winning playwright, screenwriter, former New American Library editor, and author of the novelizations of Crimes of the Heart and Nuts, will lead the session on Facets of Fiction.

Non-fiction will be led by Mary Ann Wells, author of A History's Guide to Mississippi and A Guide to Mississippi's Fairs, Festivals and Fleamarkets. Mrs. Wells has also published articles in numerous national and regional magazines and newspapers.

Poetry will feature Sue Owen, whose collection, The Book of Winter, was the 1988 winner of the Ohio State University Press/The Journal Award in Poetry.

Luncheon is scheduled for noon to 1:30 p.m. with Jay Higginbotham as the guest speaker. Mr. Higginbotham is the author of Pascagoula-Singing River City, and Fast Train Russia, the latter published in Russia. Writing Contest winners will receive cash awards of $15 for first place, $10 for second, and $5 for third in each category.

From 2 to 3 p.m., a panel of staff members, guest authors and publishers will discuss topics of interest and answer questions from conference participants. Agents, editors, contracts, copyrights and markets are among the subjects to be discussed.

Display rooms, which will be open all day, will showcase exhibits from authors, bookstores, presses, and related businesses and services. Authors and businesses wishing to participate in this area can receive display reservation forms by writing Gulf Coast Writers Association, 900 E. Birch Drive, Gulfport, MS 39507, or calling (601) 832-2713 or 863-8190.

Registration forms for the April 1 conference are also available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the same address. Costs for the conference, including the luncheon, are: advance registration through March 6, $20 for GCWA members, $25 for non-members; after March 6 or at the door, $25 for GCWA members, $30 for non-members.

According to Kim Campbell, GCWA president, entries for the Writing Contest are arriving daily, with inquiries about the contest and conference coming from several surrounding states as well as the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

The Writing Contest will accept entries until March 1 in all three categories: Fiction, maximum 3,000 words; Non-Fiction, maximum 3,000 words; and Poetry, maximum 36 lines. Manuscripts must be original and unpublished, typewritten and double-spaced on one side of 8 1/2 by 11 white paper. Author's name should not be on the manuscript, only category and title. A cover sheet with author's name, address, telephone number, category and title should be sealed in a legal envelope with title on the outside. That envelope and a $2 fee payable to GCWA should accompany each entry. All entries should be mailed to Luri Owen, William Carey College on the Coast, 1856 Beach Drive, Gulfport, MS 39507.

Brochures, registration forms and other information will also be available at the Feb. 23 meeting of GCWA at 7 p.m. in Room 104, Parker Hall, William Carey College on the Coast. The group, formed last May to foster and support area writers, is open to anyone, published or unpublished, interested in the craft of writing.

ENCOUNTER—Charles B. Murphy Elementary fourth grader Tony Augustine was one of two students selected to represent coastal schools at a press conference on NASA's community involvement program, Coast Encounters: A Space Age Adventure in Science Literacy for the Mississippi Coast held February 17 in Biloxi. He is the son of Faith Augustine. Tony said he is very excited about Coast Encounters and feels honored to have been selected for participation in the program.

ORATORICAL WINNERS—Herb Jeffry of Waveland American Legion Post 77 congratulates Jessica Johnson and Joseph Eakins, second and first place winner, respectively, in the post's oratorical contest held last week. Eakins, of Fenton, is a student at Hancock North Central High School. Johnson, of Waveland, attends Bay Senior High School. District level competition in the contest was held Saturday at the Waveland Legion Hall. (Echo staff photo by D.C. Harvill)

Sixth graders launch 'roaring rocket' models

Coast Episcopal High School sponsored a 'Roaring Rocket Rally' for students in the sixth grade at Coast Episcopal Elementary School, Diamondhead Academy, and Westminster Academy in early February.

James Anderson of the Commercial Application Programs Division of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration conducted the program on model rocketry. Mr. Anderson, also known as NASA's 'Dr. Rocket' conducts the model rocket program for NASA's Space Camp each summer.

The program was divided into three sections. In the morning, each sixth grade student assembled an Alpha III rocket.

While the rockets were drying, Anderson showed a variety of model rockets that he owns to the children and presented information about model rocketry as a hobby and possible career choices in the rocket science field.

The afternoon was spent firing the rockets and all of the launches were successful.

Mrs. Toney Doney, physical education teacher at Coast Episcopal Elementary School, taught the children two recreational games 'Asteroids and Space Race' which were played during the lunch break.

COUNTDOWN—James Anderson of the Stennis Space Center readies the rocket made by Marty Vander Noot, sixth grade student at Coast Episcopal Elementary School, for lift-off. (CES photo)

Hartwell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hartwell of Pass Christian and has attended Coast Episcopal since the first grade.
